

SUBSTITUTE ABSTRACT

A locking element for holding together threaded parts such as screws and nuts against undesired loosening has two annular lock washers lying on each other and having center holes. These washers have inner faces lying on each other and provided with teeth and outer faces turned away from each other and also provided with teeth. One of the washers is at the respective center hole on the respective outer face with a rounding or a groove.